

Oh, Grandfather Oak,
why as I tie my hammock
does your first leaf drop?

Under patchwork quilt,
Mom's chest still rises and falls
as I lift the shade.

Mercury plunges.
In order to see my breath,
I must first exhale.

– Mary Wanser